THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, TUESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1877.

In a memorial to the Peking Gazette of the 5th July, one of the Imperial Censors calls attention to the usual quaint style of these documents to some disorderly conduct on the part of the graduates at one of the recent examinations at the Capital. "While," he says, "the graduates were assembled within the Imperial precincts on the 2nd June last for the Palace competition, before the preliminary ceremony of prostration was completed, they sprang to their feet in wild confusion, and began to scramble for the blank essay forms. The Secretary of the Board of Ceremonies, who was in attendance, in endeavouring to quell the riotous proceeding and to keep possession of the papers, had the back of his hand lacerated by the finger-nails of the contending graduates. Such want of reverence as this for the Imperial halls has surely never before been displayed by the lettered class!" We quite agree with the Censor that this was very terrible conduct on the part of the graduates; still we should have imagined there were far more important matters in China calling for a memorial to the Dragon Throne than a petty squabble in a school-house. We also cannot quite understand the anxiety of the students for the blank essay forms.

We have received the Medical Reports for the half year ended March 31st last, forwarded by the Surgeons to the Customs at the Treaty Ports in China. Dr. Scott, in his report on the health of Swatow, says that for several months small-pox was supposed to be epidemic among the Chinese in and around that Settlement, but he experienced great difficulty in obtaining any reliable information on the subject. He believes, however, that it was very prevalent. Many Chinese applied to him for vaccine lymph, and vaccination appeared to be extensively practised in the district. Doctor Scott refers at great length to an interesting and fatal case of frost-bite that came under his care in December last:—

The sufferer, a Malay sailor, came here from Chefoo, where he had got frost-bitten. When he was first attacked by the cold, he put both his feet into warm water. On his arrival here on December 26th, the left foot was quite gangrenous and a line of demarcation was forming about two inches above the ankle. At once saw there was no hope of saving that foot, and determined to amputate it as soon as possible. The toes of this foot were sloughing off and the tendons were bare, though there were as yet no bones protruding through the skin. The right foot was not so bad—the toes were going, but the tendons were not bare and there was no distinct line of separation. The patient had suffered much pain, and after many sleepless days and nights and little nourishment, was in a very low and feeble condition. On the 27th, finding there was no possibility of saving the left foot or improving the man's condition, I performed a double flap amputation at the lower third of the leg, having first applied Eschsch's bandage.

There was no blood lost during the cutting part of the operation, and the stump lost in tying the blood-vessels. The stump healed almost entirely by first intention, and all the ligatures came away on the seventh day. The right foot had in the meantime become very bad, and was separating through the ankle joint, leaving the bones of the leg bare. I determined therefore to amputate this leg also, in the same place and manner as the other, and on January 10th I operated. This stump healed up nearly as the other had done and the ligatures came away on the tenth day. There was a little bluish red
